ZADAR, CROATIA

Northern Dalmatia is a region of great natural beauty with wonderful National parks, fine beaches with crystal clear water and lovely little islands. The ancient city of Zadar is undoubtedly one of the jewels in its crown and is a gateway to three outstanding national parks Paklenica, Plitvice Lakes and Krka, wedged between the crystal clear Adriatic Sea and the dusky Velebit mountains. Zadar itself is well worth a visit and boasts a history spanning three thousand years. Over the centuries the town has come under Roman, Venetian, Austrian and French rule giving it a unique cultural heritage and leaving a fascinating architectural kaleidoscope for visitors to enjoy.

Enjoy a guided tour and introduction to Zadar's 3000 year old history, from the Illyrians Romans, Croats, Venetians and Austrians to the modern Croatian state. Zadar was the capital of Dalmatia from the 7th century until 1918 and is a city of great cultural significance, not only for Croatia, but in the wider European context. The University of Zadar, founded in 1396, is the oldest seat of learning in Croatia and one of the oldest in Europe. Valuable manuscripts, books and works of art abound in the town's libraries and museums, and historical monuments, buildings and churches bear witness to past glories.

The religious architecture from the early Middle ages is the finest to be found anywhere in Croatia and includes jewels such as: St Mary's church and Benedictine monastery and its 11th century bell tower, the Church of St Chrysogonus, the town's patron saint and Saint Anastasia's cathedral, the biggest church building in all Dalmatia, parts of which date back to the 5th century. The rest of the cathedral, built in the Romanesque style, is mainly from the 12th and 13th centuries.

Zadar is a historical and architectural treasure trove. Admire the roman forum built between the 1st and 3rd centuries; a decorative column stands on the west side, hung with chains. It was used in the Middle ages as a "pillar of shame" to punish wrong doers. Near the forum ruins you will see the Church of Saint Donat, symbol of the city, which dates back to the 9th century. It is the most famous example of early medieval Croatian architecture and is unique in Europe.

The Rector's palace, dating from the 13th century is said to be one of the most beautiful buildings in Croatia and, together with the neighbouring Providur's palace, forms the largest historical complex left standing in the city after the devastation of the Second World War.

Zadar was once the largest city fortress in the whole Republic of Venice and the city walls and fortifications ensured that the city never fell prey to marauding Turks. Six gates remain in the city walls, the most impressive being the Land Gate which was the main entrance to the city. This triumphal arch, built by a Venetian architect in 1543, is the finest Renaissance monument in the region and has been awarded UNESCO world heritage status.

Modern highlights include the amazing Zadar Sea Organ, a feat of architecture which harnesses the power of Nature; it consists of simple white stone steps which conceal thirty five tubes that are musically tuned. Sounds are produced by the movement of the sea pushing air into the pipes and differ according to the power and velocity of the waves. The same Croatian architect, Nikola Basic, also created the "Greeting to the Sun" which is a 22m diameter circle paved with multi layered glass covering solar cells. At dusk the energy collected by the cells in the pavement creates a spectacular light show which, combined with the music of the Sea Organ, is literally out of this world. The shorefront was totally destroyed by the end of World War II so the Sea organ and Greeting to the Sun are really much more than a tourist attraction; for the people of Zadar, they symbolise renewal and resurrection.

At the end of the walking tour guests will sample some Maraschino an original cherry liqueur also known as "the King of Liqueurs" because of its popularity with King George IV of England, King Louis XVIII of France and Nicolas 1, Tsar of Russia. It was created at the beginning of the 16th century at the Dominican monastery in Zadar.

“The Gold and Silver of Zadar”,

Walking tour

Duration 3 hours

Minimum 10 participants maximum 20

Euros 39

Follow the guide on this walking tour through Zadar’s colourful history and see the town’s architectural treasures and priceless religious relics as well as a choice selection of museums.

The walking tour will take you to the 9th century Church of St Donat, symbol of the city, the most famous example of early medieval architecture in Croatia. You will also see the Roman Catholic cathedral dedicated to St Anastasia which was built on the foundations of a Christian basilica from the 4th century. The current Romanesque style building dates from the 12th and 13th centuries and is the largest cathedral in Dalmatia. Other sites of interest include the remains of the Roman forum commissioned by the Emperor Augustus, the largest on the east coast of the Adriatic Sea, with its temple dedicated to Jupiter, Juno and Minerva. St Simeon’s church also figures on the itinerary; this 17th century Baroque church contains the Sarcophagus of St Simeon, a masterpiece of the goldsmith’s art. The cedar wood coffin, covered with exquisitely executed gold plated reliefs depicting the presentation of Jesus to Simeon in the temple, and scenes from the lives of saints, was commissioned in 1377 by Elizabeth of Bosnia as an act of atonement. It is said that during a Mass she surreptitiously broke off one of the Saint’s mummified fingers and concealed it on her person, before being forced to surrender this grisly trophy.

The tour includes a visit to the Permanent Exhibition of Religious Art, popularly known as “The Gold and Silver of Zadar”. These priceless treasures, jealously guarded by Benedictine nuns, include sculptures, needlework, tapestries, and gold and silver religious objects dating from the 7th to the 18th century. You will also get to admire the fabulous exhibits housed in the Museum of Ancient Glass, one of the most extensive collections of ancient glass in Europe. There are over 5000 different glass objects dating from the 1st century BC to the 5th century AD, many of them from the Roman settlements in the area and the Roman Necropolis. During the visit there will be a unique opportunity to watch a display of manual glass blowing at a workshop inside the museum, a live demonstration producing replicas of antique glassware and glass jewellery. (The workshop is closed on Sundays).

Inside visits: the Church of St Donat, the Permanent Exhibition of Religious Art, “the Gold and Silver of Zadar” (special opening for Star Clippers guests until 13h30), or an archaeological museum, the Museum of Ancient Glass (workshop closed on Sundays), the cathedral of St Anastasia and the church of St Simeon.

The visit to the Permanent Exhibition of Religious Art will be replaced by a visit to the Archaeological Museum when the exhibition is closed.

DUBROVNIK, CROATIA

Taste and Flavours of Dubrovnik

Transport by air-conditioned motor coach

Minimum 20 participants, maximum 35

Duration 4 hours

Euros 60

The tour starts with a pleasant drive along the Adriatic road to the town of Mali Ston, the “oyster capital” of Croatia. This little town is often described as Dubrovnik in miniature. It boasts impressive 5km long city walls, among the longest defensive walls in the world. Construction of the walls started in 1317, and was finally completed in the 16th century. You will also see the ancient salt pans that were in use during the Dubrovnik Republic; salt is still produced there to this day. However Ston is mainly famed for its oysters, and there are oyster farms dotted all around. Upon your arrival in Mali Ston, you will board a local boat which will take you to the oyster and mussel beds. Your guide will tell you about oyster and mussel production in the area and you will get to taste some of the freshest sea food you have ever eaten, including some Mussel Bouzara, a local dish consisting of mussels cooked in wine, olive oil and garlic.

After the visit you will return to your motor coach in Mali Ston and drive back to Dubrovnik.

There will be a short guided tour of Dubrovnik Old Town, and then you will be free to do some exploring on your own.

Dubrovnik Sea Kayaking

Minimum 6 participants, maximum 24

Duration 3h30

Euros 45

The Dubrovnik Kayak tour is an unusual and original way to take in all the city highlights.

You will start the tour by rowing between the forts of Bokar and Lovrijenac. Bokar fort is one of the oldest of its kind, and was built to protect Pile Gate and City Bridge. It was also used as a prison. Lovrijenac guards the west entrance and, unlike the other city forts which form part of the city wall fortifications, it stands alone perched high on a rock, earning it the name of “the Gibraltar of Dubrovnik”. These days it is used as a venue for Dubrovnik’s summer festival, as well as for staging Shakespeare plays, so its thick walls resound to the words of the Bard rather than the thud of canon balls.

Next on the agenda is Lokrum island. Legend has it that Richard the Lionheart was cast ashore here after being shipwrecked in 1192, luckily you will be spared a similar fate. After steering a course around the island you will reach Betina cave, a hidden gem accessible only by sea. Here we will stop for a snack and you will have some leisure time to go swimming in the crystal clear Adriatic before rowing back to the departure point and returning to port.

2 participants per kayak

We recommend you bring swimsuits, towels, sun hat and sun screen

There is a 15 minute walk to the kayak base

The Great Dubrovnik Treasure hunt: Five hundred years of Fine Art

On foot

Duration 3 hours

Minimum 10 participants, Maximum 18

Euros 40

Take a leisurely guided stroll through this medieval town and learn all about the history of the Dubrovnic Republic and its rich artistic and architectural heritage. The tour includes visits to a choice selection of museums.

The Rector's palace, now the town's cultural history museum, is one of Dubrovnik's priceless treasures; an outstanding secular monument which combines gothic and renaissance architecture. The rector was elected for a period of one month, and during that time not only was he forbidden to bring his family to live with him, he could not leave the palace himself without asking the permission of the senate. Here you will see rooms restored to their former glory and furnished in period style, portraits, coats of arms and coins.

The Sponza palace which now houses all Dubrovnik's historical archives is another fine mix of gothic and renaissance styles. Since it was first built in the XVIth century it has served as a customs house, mint, treasury and armoury as well as being home to Dubrovnik's first literary institution founded by a group of poets at the end of the XVIth century. It holds the distinction of being one of the very few buildings in the Old Town to have emerged unscathed from the terrible earthquake of 1667.

The Church of St Blaise was not so lucky; the original construction dating from 1368 was severely damaged in the quake and was replaced in 1715 by the baroque style building you now see. Saint Blaise is the patron saint of Dubrovnik who averted a catastrophe in 971 by forewarning the City Elders that a surprise attack by the Venetians was imminent. The marble altars in the church are particularly impressive and on the main altar there is a gothic statue of St Blaise himself, dating from the fifteenth century. This gold plated silver statue shows St Blaise holding the town of Dubrovnik (as it was before the earthquake) in his hands. The fact that this statue survived the earthquake which destroyed the original church and a subsequent fire is considered to be something of a miracle.

The Roman Baroque Cathedral of the Assumption of the Virgin is another « new » building, completed in 1713 after the earlier construction was destroyed by the earthquake. It is a veritable treasure trove and houses some 138 gold and silver reliquaries fashioned by local goldsmiths from the 11th to the 17th century. The reliquaries contain relics of St Blaise and a fragment of the Holy Cross. There is also a polyptych (panelled painting) of the Assumption of the Virgin Mary from Titian's studio and a painting attributed to Raphael.

However the best artwork is to be found at the Dominican Monastery Museum. The building dates from the fourteenth century (about the same time as the city walls) and looks more like a fortress than a religious building: all the better to protect the incredible collection of paintings from the fifteenth and sixteenth century. You can admire work by the Dubrovnic school of painters, the Venetian school, Titian's painting of St Blaise, Flemish paintings, relics, jewelry, manuscripts and incunabula.

The tour continues with a visit to the Franciscan Monastery with the church, one of the finest Roman Gothic buildings in Croatia, the pharmacy dates from 1317, the third oldest still functioning pharmacy in the world, the museum library with an exhibition of liturgical artifacts, some paintings of old masters such as "Ecce Homo" by Francesco Raibolini (15th century), a 14th century head relic of St Ursula and the painting of Vlaho Bukovac the founder and chief representative of the Croatian modern art.

The excursion price includes entry to the treasury of the Dubrovnik cathedral, the Dominican Monastery Museum, the Franciscan monastery Museum and Pharmacy.

KOTOR, MONTENEGROPerast & Kotor

By bus and boat

Minimum 20 participants, maximum 120

Duration 4 hours

Euros 50

The most outstanding buildings here are from the 17th and 18th centuries. It is a tranquil place which abounds in sacred monuments such as the Church of St Nicholas, built between the 15th and 17th centuries. You will also get to visit the Maritime Museum.

Afterwards there will be some free time so you can explore Perast on your own before we take a boat to the islet Gospa od Skrpjela or Lady of the Rocks, and its church of the same name.

Gospa od Skrpjela is a baroque church situated on one of the two islets in the Bay of Kotor, just opposite Perast. Legend has it that the island was made over the centuries by devout mariners who, after finding an icon of the Madonna and child on a rock in the sea on July 22nd 1452, swore that they would drop a rock at the site after every successful sea voyage. Thus as time went by, the islet gradually emerged from the sea. The custom remains to this day, and on July 22nd every year at sunset the locals take part in the "fascinada" a tradition whereby they take out their boats and throw rocks into the sea. The church contains 68 magnificent paintings by Tripo Kokolja a famous 17th century artist from Perast. His masterpiece is without doubt a 10m long painting depicting the Death of the Virgin. After visiting the island you will take the boat back to Perast and board the coach for the drive from Perast to Kotor, a charming medieval town lying beside a beautiful fjord.

This UNESCO heritage site is the old maritime centre of Montenegro; it abounds in monuments, shops, cafés and restaurants. The 12th century Cathedral of St Tripun and the orthodox church of St Luka will be viewed from the outside.

VIS, CROATIA

Vis is not only a charming island with beautiful beaches, old stone houses and narrow streets, it is a geopolitical monument reflecting the conflicts and divisions of the twentieth century.

During World War II Vis was an air base for allied forces and in November 1943 the former Yugoslavian leader Tito, then head of one of the two rival Resistance movements, chose Vis as his operational headquarters. He hid from Nazi soldiers in a cave on the island for several months while he worked with the Allies to liberate the coast and islands of Croatia.

The island later became a valuable naval and military base because of its strategic position. In the Cold War era up until 1989, the island was a heavily guarded military zone with a "shoot on sight" policy which kept foreigners and outsiders at a distance.

There were as many as 30 army bases on the island and many installations still remain: underground passages, rooms, bunkers, and barracks bear witness to its military past, there is even a submarine tunnel accessible by boat.

Kept in a state of splendid isolation, cut off from the rest of the world for more than forty years, Vis has remained totally unspoilt with no purpose built tourist infrastructure to mar its authenticity.

Komiza is a picturesque little town with a proud fishing tradition located on a deep bay on the western coast of the island. It nestles at the foot of Mount Hum the highest point of the island (600m above sea level) with spectacular views of the Adriatic all the way to Velebit, Peljesac, Lastovo, Jabuka and Kornati. The town boasts a collection of beautiful stone houses dating from the 17th and 18th centuries, a lovely waterfront and numerous beaches.

Speed Boat tour of Vis island

Minimum 10 participants, maximum 20

Duration: 6 hrs,

Light lunch included

Euros 110

You will board the speed boat at Komiza and head out towards Stiniva Bay, a Croatian natural monument and nature reserve since 1967. Towering cliffs keep the bay hidden from view conferring an air of mystery, and the long narrow sea entrance formed by the rock face opens out on to a perfect little bay.

Next stop is a famous cave on the islet of Ravnik. The so-called Green cave gets its name from the eerily beautiful green light which illuminates the whole of the interior. This natural phenomenon is due to a hole in the cave's roof which lets a beam of light play on the clear transparent water, reflecting the green algae on the seabed. You can swim right into the grotto and immerse yourself in the shimmering green otherworldly atmosphere.

Afterwards we will proceed to the town of Vis, which has been inhabited since the Neolithic period. In the fourth century BC Dionysius the Tyrant of Syracuse arrived here and founded Issa, an independent state which minted its own money and founded colonies. Vis has always been a meeting point for navigational routes and has thus attracted people of many different origins and cultures. The Greeks, Romans, Slavs, Venetians, Austrians, French and British have by turns brought their influence to bear on the town. At the beginning of the 19th century 12,000 people lived here coming from all over Europe, so it is no surprise to learn that the local dialect which is Venetian in origin (until 1797 Vis was ruled by the Republic of Venice) contains some English, French, German and even Hungarian words.

The port of Vis continues to provide a safe haven for fishermen, lost adventurers and seafaring folk from all over the world to this very day.

Last on the agenda is the submarine tunnel carved out of the rock in Parja Bay. The tunnel was built in the early 1980's, so is part of the Cold War military legacy. 100m long and 10m wide it was built to hide submarines and other military vessels.

The speedboat will then return to Komiza.

Entrance to the Green cave and submarine tunnel are included on the tour

The light lunch consists of traditional island delicacies such as Viska Pogaca, a focaccia like savoury pastry, filled with salt fish and tomatoes, anchovies in lemon sauce, fish pâté and homemade bread with a glass of wine and water.

Participants need to be prepared for strenuous activity: please wear sensible shoes and comfortable clothing

There will be an opportunity to go swimming

This tour is not recommended for people with mobility issues or back problems as it would be impossible for them to get in and out of the sea.

There are no changing facilities on board.

The speedboat has toilets

The tour includes strenuous walking mostly over gravel and paved stone and there are steps to be negotiated.

The Captain may decide to adapt the itinerary depending on wind and weather conditions.

A bike tour is the ideal way to appreciate the ever changing scenery, discover some remarkable historical landmarks and fill your lungs with fresh air. There will be a minivan transfer from Komiza to the town of Vis. Here you will pick up your bikes and, after a short safety briefing, start cycling through history! On your way you will pass the Hellenistic cemetery, the remains of Roman baths, Prilovo peninsula, where there was once a Roman theatre and carry on to Stonac bay and Fort George a fortress built by the British Navy in 1813. You will see the famous "Lobster" submarine tunnel built by Tito during the Cold War years, before heading back to Vis via Samogor which was once the largest military base on the island with about 1000 troops stationed there, ready for action. Once back in Vis the excursion continues with a ride through the centre of town, along the waterfront to the village of Kut, the Czech Villa and Grandovac. Grandovac is a 60 m pebble beach in a beautiful natural environment shaded by pine and tamarisk trees where you will get the opportunity to go swimming. At the end of the excursion a minivan will be waiting to take you back to Komiza.

There will be a tour of the tunnel followed by a drive to the top of Mount Hum (587m) the highest point of the island, ideal for surveillance purposes with views of the archipelago and the village of Komiza. We will also visit the small church of Saint Spirit before heading back to base.

The Blue Cave on Bisevo Island

By speed boat

Minimum 12 participants, maximum 24

Duration 1h45

Euros 60

Set off from picturesque Komiza Bay and enjoy a scenic speed boat ride to Mazporat bay on Bisevo Island. Bisevo is a very small island with only 12 inhabitants, located five nautical miles from Komiza. The main attraction on the island is the Blue Cave, a sea cave accessible only by boat. The cave is 24m long and 12 m wide with a very narrow entrance. In the summer months the sun's rays penetrate deep into the heart of the cave through a crack in the ceiling and reflect the sandy sea bottom bathing everything in a bewitchingly beautiful silver blue light. When you arrive at Bisevo you will swap the speed boat for a small wooden craft which will take you into the cave. Access is not very easy, and at some points you will have to crouch down in the boat while the skipper manoeuvres the craft through the cave entrance. Once inside it is as if you have crossed the threshold into a magical parallel universe; time stands still as you gaze on the mesmerising blue light. After this glimpse into another world, it is back to reality as you rejoin your speed boat for the ride back to Komiza.

Mamma Mia Kayaking tour

Minimum 6 participants, maximum 10

Duration 4 hours

Euros 60

Mamma Mia 2, the sequel to the famous box office success, actually features the island of Vis. In the movie the fictional Greek island called "Kalokairi" or Summer Island, is in fact Vis; the producers fell in love with the authenticity and photogenic qualities of the island and decided it was the best possible location for the film. Most of the scenes of Mamma Mia! Here We Go Again were filmed in the sheltered Bay of Barjoska, on the west side of the island, and this is where you will be going on your kayaking expedition.

Enjoy the beautiful scenery and explore the film location. You will start your kayaking adventure from Komiza in the north west of the island. During the excursion you will visit three lovely beaches and learn about the history of Manjarema fort and the famous naval battle of Lissa in 1866 when the Austrians defeated the Italians despite being outnumbered.

The highlight of this excursion is of course the Mamma Mia location – Barjoska bay where you will have time to swim in the crystal clear waters, laze in the shadow of the pines or explore the bay. The air is perfumed with rosemary and lavender and there are over 300 different kinds of herbs growing on the island; it is a charming natural beauty spot, and you can see why it was chosen to represent "Kalokairi" island in the film.

RIB Boat Sea Adventure

Duration 4h30

Minimum 8 participants, maximum 8

Euros 146

The Rovinj archipelago and coastline are listed as "Landscapes of Outstanding Value" and once you have seen them you will understand why. The rugged coast with its holm oak and pine forests is enchantingly pretty. The protected area spans from St. John's Cape to Barbariga and encompasses all twenty Rovinj islands and islets and the coastal area up to a distance of 500 m from the coastline.

Red Island is comprised of two artificially connected islands in the Adriatic Sea. This is a popular destination for day trippers as these car-free islets, covered in pine forest and Mediterranean scrub, also boast several stony beaches and rocky coves.

Lim fjord, a sunken canyon valley in karst, is one of the most beautiful natural sites in Istria and one of the most stunning fjords outside Norway, with many secluded spots to delight visitors. The water in the fjord is more brackish and less salty than the open sea due to the many fresh water springs, and temperatures fluctuate. The water contains a lot of plankton and oxygen, so flora and fauna are abundant.

The area is a natural breeding ground for many species of fish, but is best known for its oysters which were praised by the celebrity chef Anthony Bourdain. There will be time for swimming and also for sampling some delicious local shellfish.

The tour includes a cruise around Roving archipelago and Lim fjord, a swimming break and some time at leisure at Red Island Participants must be able to swim

This tour is not suitable for guests prone to motion sickness, guests with back and/or neck problems, guests with limited mobility

Guests are advised to wear a swimsuit under a cover-up with beach or boat shoes, and bring sun protection and a towel from the ship.
